Tips to Better Flower Bouquets

Article provided by Better Home & Garden

Spring has sprung and so have beautiful flowers!

Here are some tips from Better Home & Garden on how to build a better flower bouquet for the spring.

1. As a general rule, a bouquet should be about three times as tall as its vase.
2. Use blooms for both height and width.
3. Start creating the bouquet in your hand.
4. Give it a focal point -- include three or five of the main flower type.
5. Add long foliage or branches for width and structure.
6. Keep turning the bouquet and add smaller complementary flowers.
7. Place in the vase and fill in as needed.
8. Keep a variety of vases on hand to match the mood of your mix. Snazz up your vase by using a rope.
9. Go beyond flowers and complement blooms with foliage, stems, berries and buds that add interest with texture and color.

GIGI'S KITCHEN

Salade Nicoise

Most colorful and eye-catching salad we know and also happens to taste incredible good and for you!

Ingredients

- 2 lb tiny, size "A" red-skinned potatoes
- Olive Oil
- Fresh rosemary, chopped
- 2 1/2 lbs. haricots verts or green beans, trimmed
- Zest of 2 lemons
- 2 T. dried lavender blossoms
- 1 T. herbes de Provence
- 2 t. cumin powder
- 1 t. dried cayenne powder
- 1 1/2 lbs. fresh, sushi-grade tuna, cut into small steaks
- 10 very ripe plum tomatoes, quartered
- 1 large red onion, thinly sliced
- 10 hard-boiled eggs, halved lengthwise
- 1 c. Silver Palate's Favorite Vinaigrette
- 1/2 c. parsley, chopped

Instructions

1. Preheat the oven to 450 degrees.
2. Place potatoes on a baking sheet. Drizzle with oil and roll potatoes around to coat. Sprinkle with rosemary, salt and pepper. Bake until potatoes are tender and skin is crispy, about 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven, cool to room temperature and reserve.
3. Bring a large pot of salted water to a rolling boil. Add the beans and cook until crisp-tender, about 3-5 minutes. Remove the beans using a slotted spoon and place in a large bowl of ice water. When cool, drain, pat dry and reserve.
4. Combine lemon zest, lavender blossoms, herbes de Provence, cumin, cayenne, and 1 t. salt in small bowl. Rub all sides of the tuna with spice mixture. Heat a large skillet over very high heat. Add enough olive oil just to moisten the entire surface. Add the tuna and sear 1 to 2 minutes per side, until a dark crust forms but the tuna is still raw inside. Remove from the skillet and cool. Slice across the grain into 1/2" thick slices. Reserve.
5. Arrange the potatoes, green beans, tuna, tomato, onion, eggs and olives decoratively on a very large platter. Season with salt and pepper. Drizzle generously with vinaigrette. Garnish with parsley and serve with remaining vinaigrette on the side.

Serves 6.

Enjoy!

DID YOU KNOW...?

Is the Absinthe Myth True?

Absinthe rose to great popularity as an alcoholic drink in late 1900 and early 20th century. Once beloved by the French aristocracy and then by the artists of the Belle Epoque, it moved through society with a freedom that was its own.

At cafes from Paris to Prague, absinthe was drunk by artists and labourers, butchers and bankers. Astonishingly enough for the time, even women enjoyed the ritual in public.

Shortly after monopolizing the market, the wine industry, which has been watching absinthe slowly and surely take its market share, began a smear campaign that absinthe was a poison (even if it has been invented by a French doctor, Pierre Ordinaire!!!!) and despite medical professional not buying the hype.

It had then become associated with illicit behavior and hallucinations. We know now that properly manufactured, absinthe is no more dangerous than any other liquor. Absinthe does have a very high alcohol content, which is why it's supposed to be diluted with water (and not with cognac or with wine like Oscar Wilde , Toulouse Lautrec and other artists enjoyed doing!).

Absinthe is not a hallucinogen. The chemical that's taken all the blame for absinthe's hallucinogenic reputation is called Thujone. By the end of the distillation process, there is such a small thujone amount left in the product that a person drinking absinthe would die from alcohol poisoning long before to be affected by the Thujone.

Absinthe is perfectly legal in every country in which alcohol is legal. Every ABC store carries it.

By the way, you really shouldn't attempt to light it on fire (this was a marketing tactic in eastern European clubs to increase sales of knockoff brands) or drink it as a shot.

The proper traditional french way is 3 part of water for 1 part of absinthe.

Enjoy 😊
